Seasons of Change

with Dean Natalie Eddington, PhD '89, BSP

As one of the first pharmacy schools in the United States, the University of Maryland at Baltimore is deeply rooted in history and tradition. The start of the academic school year brought about an exciting time of change for the School of Pharmacy. With the establishment of the Shady Grove campus, the incoming class of 2011 was the largest in the history of the school. To accommodate the expanded class size, the incorporation of new technology had allowed students to view lectures from remote sites, bridging the entire learning experience between Baltimore and Shady Grove campuses. Finally, curriculum changes had put the school in a state of transition in hopes of developing professionals trained for the ever-changing field of pharmacy. Along with changes brought with the new school year, the School of Pharmacy welcomed its newest dean, Dr. Natalie D. Eddington. As a distinguished researcher and former faculty member, Dean Eddington assumed her post as a leader to guide the evolution of the University of Maryland School of Pharmacy in hopes of developing pharmacists and leaders for the future.

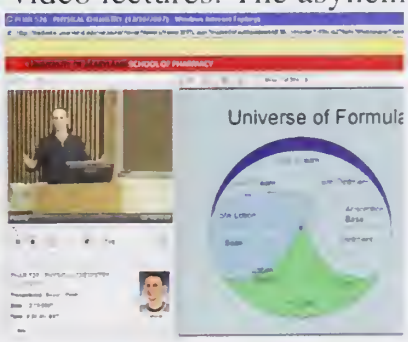
Fall 2007 marked the opening of the new University of Maryland School of Pharmacy campus at the Universities at Shady Grove in Rockville, Maryland. The Shady Grove campus is conveniently located near the Washington, D.C. metro area and federal facilities, such as the National Institute of Health, the Food and Drug Administration, the National Institute of Standards and Technology, and the U.S. Public Health Service. The new campus allows for an additional 40 students to be enrolled at the School of Pharmacy increasing the graduating class from 120 students to 160 students. The year 2011 will mark the largest graduating class in the history of the UMB Pharmacy School to date. The decision to increase the number of pharmacy students was made in response to the shortage of pharmacists in Maryland. Former dean, David A. Knapp, PhD, describes the recent expansion as a sign of advancement. He states, "As a top 10 school, we are committed to excellence in pharmacy education and with that commitment comes continued growth and improvement." Assistant Dean Heather Congdon, PharmD, CACP, CDE, is responsible for overseeing the pharmacy program at the Shady Grove campus. Former dean, David A. Knapp, is also stationed at the Shady Grove campus on sabbatical pursuing research interests in the pharmacy workforce, pharmaceutical education, and the quality of drug use and pharmaceutical care. The new campus provides the same high-quality pharmacy education given at the main Baltimore campus using state-of-the-art technology. Most lectures are delivered to Shady Grove students asynchronously via streamed video lectures. The asynchronous delivery of course material allows for more convenience and flexibility in learning.



Asynchronous lectures available online for viewing via Mediasite

Christian Pharmacists Fellowship International

Our goal is to integrate who we are as Christians with our profession of pharmacy.

We strive to:

* Set an example of Christian living in our relationships, academics, speech, love, faith, and purity to portray Christ to others and glorify God.
* Encourage shared delight in the Savior and our relationships with him through spiritual disciplines and church membership.
* Provide fellowship, materials, and prayer to revitalize the discipleship of Christians, particularly those whose faith and obedience to God are wavering.

The Student Committee on Drug Abuse Education (SCODAE) is a voluntary organization made up of University of Maryland pharmacy students. This organization receives guidance from faculty members at the University of Maryland Office of Substance Abuse Studies. SCODAE members teach drug and alcohol education to audiences of middle school children, parents, and education professionals throughout Maryland. The SCODAE presentations provide accurate and unbiased drug and alcohol information in order to prevent abuse and addiction within the community.

Events

Students and faculty enjoy their time together outside of the classroom at the White Coat Ceremony, Fall and Spring Picnics, Fall Formal, Legislative Day, and Graduation.

White Coat Ceremony

Not too long after classes began, the Doctor of Pharmacy Class of 2011 from the Baltimore and Shady Grove campuses gathered at the Medical School Teaching Facility auditorium on September 9, 2007 to enter the world of professional pharmacy. Friends and family of students also filled up the auditorium to watch the momentous occasion. The newly appointed Dean Eddington addressed the students and introduced the speaker to impart a few words of wisdom to the students.

Above: Dean Natalie Eddington takes the podium to give a few words to the Class of 2011.

Soon after, each student would be called up one by one to don their white coat, the attire of a pharmacy professional. Students then listened to Dr. Jill Morgan explain the meaning of wearing the white coat and how the community perceives pharmacists. All students then took an oath to professionalism, promising that they will uphold professional behavior.
